

Biodynamic Preparation Making

A weekend of making the biodynamic compost and horn manure preparations

Hosted by Harry Whalan with an introduction to the dynamics behind the preparations by Hamish Mackay

BATHURST 10th & 11th April, 2010

The autumn and spring biodynamic preparation making times are an excellent opportunity for biodynamic practitioners to come together and share their experiences and grow the learning. This event will be focussed on making the different preparations and will include discussions and explorations of their functions and how different individuals have experienced their effects.

Harry Whalan invites you to his Bathurst property to participate in preparation making. Please register so we know how many to expect and bring lunch. Cost is by donation to support the purchase of cow horns.

On the Saturday night there will be a showing of the popular One Man, One Cow, One Planet showing the transformative potential of biodynamics in the Indian culture.

Books will be available for sale
